

UMass Food Science

Outstanding in Research

The Department of Food Science at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst was recently ranked as one of the top food science Ph.D. research programs in the United States by the National Research Council. The 2010 study evaluated graduate programs according to several criteria, including faculty research productivity (publications, citations, grants, awards), student completion rates, and diversity.

Faculty Research

